JAMÓN

Txanton, the first Jamoneria in the Philippines, opened its doors on November 2015. It brings in jamón Serrano, Ibérico and Bellota from the 4 regions allowed to produce them: Guijuelo, Extremadura, Pedroches and Jabugo.

Txanton provides a great concept of jamón experience where you can taste the different flavor profiles of the jamón depending on their breeds and origins.

Understanding jamon as Spanish Icon

Whether in Spain or abroad, there is no denying that everyone loves Spanish jamón.

Through master carvers (cortadores de jamón), Txanton educates and teaches customers the benefits of eating carved jamón Ibérico. It also offers carving services for events.
